

This stunning visualization of auroras over the Arctic was created using imagery captured by the day/night bands of the Visible Infrared Imaging Radiometer Suite (VIIRS) instrument aboard NOAA-21. These auroras, commonly called the Northern Lights, were created by the effects of a geomagnetic storm that reached the Earth on November 5-6, 2023.

JPSS

JOINT POLAR SATELLITE SYSTEM

nesdis.noaa.gov/jpss